THE "MACHINE" IN VIRGINIA.

A correspondent of the Nation gives a very unsatisfactory account of Virginia's politics. He says that since the Readjusters obtained full control of the State government they have been managing everything on the most rigorous "machine" principles. Not content with employing the official guillotine in connection with political offices, they have extended its operation so as to take in even Presidents and Professors of Colleges, and the medical superintendents of hospitals and insane asylums. They have literally packed the State judiciary, and as they have in their own ranks no men of any prominence in intellectual pursuits, many if not all of their judicial appointments have been outrageously bad. In one instance a man was nominated for a Judgeship who was actually shown to have been a horse-thief. In that case the proof of his previous occupation was made so clear that the Readjusters were compelled to drop him; but the Judge whom they proceeded to appoint turned out to be an ignorant man, who had never opened a law book in his life. The policy of the Readjusters, evidently, is to get the State so completely into their own hands that it will be possible to drag all elements of opposition, Every office-holder, no matter in what position, who is not willing to adopt the shameful reputation programme, is instantly turned out. Under this policy the educational institutions of the State, as well as all the others, are falling into the hands of men who are not only incompetent, but awfully and boldly dishonest. It has in fact become necessary in Virginia for every office-holder to acknowledge himself a rogue, and the defense of honesty destroys the defender's political aspirations. This is what Mahonism has already done for Virginia. This is the policy which the Republican managers endorsed for the sake of winning Southern votes. Every fresh development in that disgraceful compact proves more clearly that those who have thus sown the wind will have to reap the whirlwind, and that the Mahone bargains will turn out to be the most disastrous piece of criminal folly its ratifiers ever foisted upon an indignant and reluctant party.

SKOBELOFF AND THE CZAR.

The Czar has given Skobeloff a good scolding, and has caused the reprobates he addressed to him to be widely circulated through the continental press. General Skobeloff has expressed contrition, and there, for the time, the matter ends. But skeptical observers will none the less continue to believe that Igatoff and Skobeloff understand one another very well, and that the Czar is not and never has been half as angry at the truculent utterances of his General as he pretends to be. It remains to see what is done with the ostensible offender, and it also remains to be seen whether the Czar really means to keep the peace. He has now satisfied himself that the Russian people would approve a war with Germany or Austria, or both. If, however, he thinks it possible to make his preparations in such a way as to choose his own time for commencing hostilities, he is reckoning without Molke and Bismarck, who are not apt to let themselves be outmaneuvered in a case of this kind.

FRANK PIXLEY AS A CORRESPONDENT.

Mr. Frank Pixley is at present corresponding with his paper, the Argonaut, Washington. His letters are generally very readable, though he appears to be more careful about the strength than the accuracy of his statements. Under the date of March 23, however, he has written a criticism of Senator Hoar's speech on the Chinese question, which is characterized by some of the worst faults of the least reputable of correspondents.

Mr. Hoar had made a speech against the anti-Chinese bill. It was certainly not a very able one, and perhaps it is true that Mr. Hoar is not a very able man. But he is a perfect right to his opinions, and it cannot be forgotten that his opinions on this subject are also those of a very large proportion of the American people. Yet because he did not satisfy Frank Pixley the latter attacks him with the most vul-

AN INVOLVED CONTROVERSY.

The efforts which are being made to elucidate the Garfield-Roscerans dispute have thus far only tended to obscure it still further, and so full of contradictions is the whole affair that it is difficult to decide who is being attacked, and who defended. The controversy arose out of an expression in Blaine's eulogy, to the effect that there had been dissensions in the Army of the Cumberland when General Garfield was Chief of Staff to Rosceran. This statement offended Roscerans, who denied it, saying that if anything of the kind had occurred he would probably have known of it. At this point the New York Sun printed what purported to be a letter written by Garfield to Judge Chase in 1864, in which an unfavorable opinion of General Roscerans and his campaign was expressed. Thereupon the friends of Garfield assert that an attempt is being made to injure his memory, and they forthwith proceed (1) to question the genuineness of the letter; (2) to show that Garfield on many occasions spoke very highly of Roscerans; (3) to demonstrate the justness of the criticism contained in the letter. It would appear from this that President Garfield's friends had not made up their minds as to what they desired to effect, for it is clear that the things they have set themselves to do are calculated to involve the whole subject in hopeless confusion. It is obviously necessary in the first place to determine the genuineness of the letter, for if it is a forgery no further need for argument will exist. But should it prove to be genuine, the case assumes a much more difficult aspect, for then it will require to be explained how it happened that Garfield both approved and censured Roscerans. As regards the fact of his approval, we are surprised that any writer should have thought it necessary to descend to mere abuse in answering him.

The astronomical sketches by Professor Van De Mark were very interesting and were delivered with pleasing dramatic effect. Miss Belle, the young actress, created by visitors very entertaining. The entire exhibition is an excellent one, all it claims to be, and the management keeps its announcements to the letter. The principal attractions are the horses, ever ready for a like entertainment here, and constitute another step in the new era which means death to the prices of the pioneer times for an evening's amusement. Tickets will no longer be Physiology and views in Switzerland, with lectures and miscellaneous views.

COURTING MATCH.—On Saturday evening last the Sacramento Valley Courting Club held a meeting, which was very largely attended. After considerable discussion as to the place of holding the next match, it was decided by the majority in favor of Whitehead's ranch. They invite the owners of greyhounds in the valley to meet them there, which is now progressing, and in the preparation of a supplement for 1882, that just 102 names which appear on the Great Register will appear, the names of those who have died or moved away.
